

Look forward to a ‘sold out’ show!

With just four days until the show, Harrogate Christmas & Gift organisers are delighted to announce that the event is fully booked. Until a few weeks ago, there were still a few small exhibitor spaces left, but these have now all be snapped up, so visitors can look forward to eight halls of the Harrogate Convention Centre packed to bursting with exciting new products! Read below for another snapshot of some of the great things instore for you – and don’t forget, if you require further information, everything you need is on the website at www.harrogatefair.com

Traditional & modern

The Satchville Gift Company is based in the United Kingdom and has been supplying to garden centres, florists and independent retailers for over 12 years. It has established excellent relationships with manufacturers located around the world and its experienced, dedicated buyers specialise in sourcing beautiful and practical accessories for the home and garden, as well as seasonal decorations and gifts, ensuring the company is delivering high quality products at completeive prices. The carefully curated range is a tasteful balance between traditional and modern, purposeful products including planters, plant pots, basket ware, vases, jugs, decorative glassware and home textiles.

Hand-crafted designs

Fair to Trade returns to Harrogate Christmas & Gift with new collections of hand-crafted decorations from around the world. This includes over 80 new hand painted designs developed alongside its talented artisans in Kashmir that are available in different shapes and sizes of papier-mâché and wooden decorations. As well as its traditional Kashmiri, Christmas and religious designs, this year it has a new range of unvarnished natural Kraft baubles providing an environmentally friendly solution for Christmas 2024.

Fair to Trade also develops bespoke ranges across different handicrafts for customers such as the Victoria & Albert Museum, Rick Stein and Oxfam GB who are looking for their own unique sustainable decorations.
